BC Public Service Employees for Freedom is a registered not-for-profit society, standing for medical privacy and bodily autonomy. We are defending ourselves and others against medical coercion and discrimination. We champion understanding, inclusivity, and freedom of choice.

Members are dedicated public servants who have been unjustly fired, put on unpaid leave, forced to quit, retire early, or re-apply for their own jobs due to the discriminatory Covid-19 vaccine mandate.

Members have experienced discrimination, bullying, harassment, loss of homes, unsustainable debt, marriage and family breakdowns, and isolation. Deaths of despair have occurred.

If you are in a similar situation, please know that you are not alone, we welcome new members and offer a variety of support services. Were you coerced into complying? If so, there may be opportunity for you to join our legal action.

We are currently fighting for our constitutionally protected employment rights, medical privacy, and bodily autonomy through B.C. Supreme Court legal actions and filings with the Labour Relations Board.

PLEASE DONATE

We depend on donations to fund our efforts.

No donation is too small.

Funds raised go towards legal fees, member hardship fund, and minor administrative costs to operate our non-profit society.
